Understanding your feedback report

You recently completed a number of assessments as part of our student recruitment process. This report has been created to give you personal and confidential feedback on the results of your assessments. We hope this will help you to reflect on your results and use this understanding for your future career plans irrespective of the outcome of this application.

This report is personal and confidential to you. You don't need specific training or knowledge to interpret it. The report also provides ideas to help improve your skills.

Ability tests

The tests you completed provide a fair and objective assessment of your cognitive ability. Research has shown that these tests can provide reliable information on future performance in many different jobs. However, many other factors also play an important role in predicting job success. To help you understand your ability test scores, we've compared your performance to others who have taken these tests in the past. This is known as a comparison group.

Verbal reasoning

This test measures your ability to evaluate the logic of different kinds of arguments. The information presented is relevant to a business environment. The test emphasises understanding, using and evaluating verbal information rather than language usage, spelling or grammar. People who perform well on this test tend to have the capacity to readily understand reports and documents.

Verbal reasoning

Your performance on this test was exceptional when compared to the comparison group you were compared against. This suggests that understanding and evaluating written reports and documents is likely to be a significant area of strength for you, on the basis of your performance on this test.

Ideas to help improve your skills

You may be interested in things you can do to maintain or enhance these skills.

Developing your skills is something that requires considerable time and effort. As well as reviewing the practical tips below, think about the opportunities you have in your everyday life to challenge yourself in this skill area. How often do you deal with written reports and documents? How can you gain more exposure to this type of information?

- Read a wide variety of written material and concentrate on the recognition of key arguments. Define what is explicitly stated and what is only implied. Magazines and newspapers are particularly good sources for this, as they often have to be careful about what they print.
- Read business-related news reports and business journals, such as The Financial Times and industry related publications.
- When considering the different perspectives of an argument, challenge yourself around your own understanding to ensure you fully appreciate each of the positions, prior to committing to your own conclusion.

We hope that this report has been useful in providing you with feedback relative to your assessment at this stage of the recruitment process. PwC wishes you all the best with your future career, at PwC or otherwise.
